1. Short description on the content of the deliverable:

Online Publication of Working Papers from the JPI MYBL Working Groups

In order to stimulate scientific and societal debate with scientists and stakeholders outside the JPI bodies and before the Strategic Research Agenda is ready, the General Assembly decided that a number of Working Papers from the 5 Scientific Working Groups of the JPI MYBL should be published and accessible on the JPI Website.

Working Groups of the JPI:

1. Health & Performance
2. Social Systems & Welfare
3. Work & Productivity
4. Education & Learning
5. Housing, Environments & Mobility

After consultation with the Scientific Advisory Board and the Working Groups, a selection of papers was chosen and published. The Working papers were published in March 2013 with the following disclaimer:

The following discussion paper is a contribution to the working group process of the JPI "More Years, Better Lives" and summarises the expert views of the author. It is not necessarily the final position of the entire JPI and its representatives.

New Design of Website

Furthermore, the layout and design of the JPI Website were changed, in order to reflect better the holistic and interdisciplinary (and trans-generational) approach of the JPI.

2. Deliverable

The following working papers from the Working Papers from the 5 Scientific Working Groups (WG) of the JPI MYBL are published on the JPI Website on <http://www.jp-demographic.eu/news-events/news/discussion-papers-of-jpi-working-groups-online>

Welcome

Joint Programming is a new approach to foster collaboration and coordination in R&D in Europe. It is a member-states driven activity. The Joint Programming Initiative (JPI) "More Years, Better Lives - The Potential and Challenges of Demographic Change" seeks to enhance coordination and collaboration between European and national research programmes related to demographic change.

Areas affected by demographic change cover a wide range of research fields and policy topics ranging from health to social welfare, education & learning, work & productivity to housing, urban & rural development and mobility. The JPI therefore follows a transnational, multi-disciplinary approach bringing together different research programmes and researchers from various disciplines in order to provide solutions for the upcoming challenges and make use of the potential of societal change in Europe.

Currently 13 European countries are participating in the JPI „More Years, Better Lives“.
