The 1997 European Telework Awards were presented at a ceremony in Brussels on 7 November 1997, during the third European Telework Week.

The aim of the awards matches the aims of the European Telework Week - to promote the understanding of telework and its considered implementation. A total of 56 organizations entered the contest, in five categories. Three nominees from each category had the chance to present their entry to the panel of judges at a session in Brussels on 7 November.

The award-winners chosen in each category were as follows:

- Contribution to competitiveness:
 - . IBM Belgium-Luxembourg's Shared Office Implementation;
- Original telework application:
 - . ISDaC (Information Society Disabilities Challenge) European initiative;
- Contribution to sustainability:
 - . Rijkswaterstaat directorate from Northern Netherlands;
- Technological contribution to sustainability:
 - . Siemens AG/Private Networks of Austria;
- Media coverage:
 - . New "Teleworkx" magazine, from Germany.

The 1998 European Telework Awards will be presented during the fourth European Telework Week, to be held in early November 1998.
