

*The Department of Gender & Women's Studies and
The Center for Science, Technology, Medicine & Society invite you to a symposium*

Making Families: Transnational Surrogacy, Queer Kinship, and Reproductive Justice

Friday, February 19, 2016 (9 am - 5 pm)
470 Stephens Hall, UC Berkeley

In this open workshop, the speakers will discuss their work on how the borders and limits to reproduction are constituted, both in reproductives and inter-country politics. This will include questions about what bio-politics of reproduction govern different national jurisdictions and transnational circuits, if and how queering kinship is possible, and how reproductive justice perspectives can be incorporated into practices such as egg donation and surrogacy.

SPEAKERS

Prof. Charis Thompson, UC Berkeley, London School of Economics

Prof. Joshua Gamson, Univ. of San Francisco

Prof. France Winddance Twine, UC Santa Barbara

Prof. Zakiya T. Luna, UC Santa Barbara

Prof. Laura Mamo, San Francisco State Univ.

Prof. Kim TallBear, Univ. of Alberta

Dr. Michal Nahman, Univ. of the West of England, Bristol

Prof. Sharmila Rudrappa, Univ. of Texas-Austin

Dr. Marcin Smietana, UC Berkeley, Univ. of Cambridge

Prof. Judith Stacey, New York Univ.

The event is free, open to the public, and wheelchair accessible.

Please join us any time of the day!

For more information: www.makingfamilies.eu

marcin.smietana@berkeley.edu

European Union

Co-sponsored by:

Center for Race & Gender, Center for the Study of Sexual Culture,
Department of African American Studies, Department of Ethnic Studies