Project description

Supporting and protecting industrial heritage sites

Industrial heritage sites (IHS) are an important part of our cultural, social and technological past, contributing to the identity of a place. The EU-funded CONSIDER project aims to develop sustainable management models for industrial heritage sites at a time when challenges due to deindustrialisation processes are on the rise. The models will not only provide communities with an invaluable resource but also help strengthen collective identities and improve the urban landscape, among other key benefits. At the same time, the project will explore participatory governance models to shed light on the integration of IHS with European society.
