Project description

Empowering adolescents to achieve better health

Adolescents are an important population group to reach for the prevention of non-communicable diseases and mental health issues that are often associated with living in unstable urban environments. Individual therapy is inadequate to address this at a societal level. As such, the citiesRISE cross-national initiative is exploring innovative ways to improve the mental well-being of young adults through multi-faceted, youth-led interventions targeting internal, social and environmental factors. The EU-funded YiPEE project will evaluate the impact, feasibility, adaptability and cost-effectiveness of this intervention approach in India, Kenya, South Africa and Sweden, with the goal of creating a healthier future.
